

Advocating as an Ambassador Training

Developing the Speech Worksheet

Developing the Speech

This worksheet will outline the important messages that are important to share with your audience as a self-advocate and trained ambassador. Use this sheet to highlight the importance of your message, ways to incorporate your audience, and your call to action. Use the points from this worksheet to develop your final speech.

Introduction

Include: Who are you? Ten important points about you from earlier exercise.

Body

What are the three main points you want to share with your audience about being an advocate and why it is important?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Include: What can you offer as an advocate? What are your accomplishments, goals, and obstacles? How can serving as an ambassador and being a strong self-advocate help you share your mission of inclusion and acceptance of all people?

Conclusion

Why should this audience care? You have networked with these people; you know who they are – why is it important that they take your message and help you change the world to be a more inclusive place? What is their call to action?
