Telling Your Story

The Five W's

A close-up photograph of a magnifying glass held over an open, antique book. The magnifying glass is positioned centrally, with its handle extending towards the bottom right. The lens is sharply focused on a specific line of text in the book, while the surrounding pages and the edges of the magnifying glass are blurred. The text visible through the lens is in an older script, possibly Latin or French, and includes the words 'striking in', 'forearm or of', '(greater focile), the', 'focus', 'MI7. [L = n. see FOR', 'Any of a number', 'distances to any poi', 'obey a simple arith', 'ellipse) either of', 'distances to any', 'constant sum; (', and 'distance from'. The overall lighting is warm, highlighting the texture of the aged paper and the glass of the magnifying glass.

Keep Your Eye on the Prize

A photograph of three individuals on a stage in front of a large, seated audience. On the left, a woman with long blonde hair, wearing a dark jacket and light-colored pants, stands near a microphone stand. In the center, a man in a red polo shirt and grey trousers has his back to the camera, gesturing with his hands raised. On the right, a woman with curly hair, wearing a blue jacket and dark pants, also has her back to the camera and is gesturing with her hands. The audience, consisting of many people, is seated in rows of red chairs, filling the background. The stage is lit with warm spotlights, and the overall atmosphere is that of a formal presentation or conference.

Reading vs Delivering a Speech

What's the difference?

Cons of Reading a Speech

Presentation Tips

- Eye Contact
- Speed
- Volume
- Hand Gestures
- Utilizing pauses

A large, diverse group of people is seated in a tiered lecture hall, filling the frame from the foreground to the back. Many individuals are waving their hands, suggesting an interactive session or a celebratory event. The hall features a dark ceiling with numerous recessed lights and walls with a textured, brick-like pattern. The overall atmosphere is one of engagement and participation.
